Ceramics

Bethan Harrington is a ceramic-based designer. For this project, she has pulled from areas she is particularly passionate about such as pollution in our oceans and coral bleaching. She has tailored her ceramic skills to create a statement piece; her focus being on shape and texture. It was important for her to design some more practical pieces that could be used in the home but still focused on the main theme, so she's also created dishes to go along with the main vessel.
