Copper with Patterned Enamel

Metonia Metal by Sophie Bartrop

Enamel and Copper

Sophie's work revolves around the combination of metal and enamel. She enjoys exploring different enamel processes and understanding the material through experimentation and tests. Her current work for this exhibition is a display of the plique-à-jour technique combined with her interest in natural forms. The project has been material led through exploration of twisting and bending copper strips as well as the study of barnacle patination and the bright colours of sea glass washed ashore.

Artist Bio

I am studying Design crafts at De Montfort University and am specialising in metal and enamel. I am taking an exchange year to Grand Valley State University in Michigan USA next year where I will plan to expand my skills of enamel by making jewellery.
