Solitude

The Basement Presents

video

Solitude can often bring up uncertain emotions and thoughts, with our brain jumping from one emotion to another. This video explores how being alone is not always lonely.

Generative patches, which produce a laser performance, accompany the music, made with several different synths and two guitar pedals during the live performance "Lightcode". This performance will include some of this music and a mixture of sound bath instruments to create a digital sound bath with visuals.

£10 via a USB with video and full album

Artist Bio

I have just moved to the UK after spending 11 years in Florida. I have been producing music and DJing for over 20 years. I also have curated events throughout the UK and USA. My goal with music, no matter the genre, is to evoke an emotional response to the message either through the lyrics or using specific instruments. I am an avid meditator and recently have made music to help with that.
