"We Should Start A Band", "Dish Jockey", "Fear Of The Stage"

Vilma Leino

digital photographs printed on alu-dibond/ fine art paper

These works are a collection of self-portraits reflecting the connection between impulse, music, and psychologically complicated stages. They are playful explorations seeking how to show emotion through sound, in silence.

Artist Bio

Vilma Leino (b. Finland, 1999) is a Berlin-based photographer. Her work focuses on self-portrait photography, which she uses to reflect inner emotions, solitude, and difficult psychological stages. In her work, she creates female characters with untold stories and experiments with strong colour schemes, composition, and the human body.

The photographs often balance beauty and horror, and she uses humour as an aspect to lighten up darker subjects. Her photographs are a one-woman show, where being in control and the fear of losing it are in constant dialogue, forming a story about personal growth, where fears are forming into strength.
