woven words 1/ 2/ 3

Beth Lukockyj

These works form part of an ongoing collection of textile works exploring words and language through 'woven words'. Using common words, phrases and often fundamental questioning the pieces invite interpretation, emotional responses and a personal connection allowing the tone to shift depending on the observer's own perspective and mood - whether playful or confrontational, confused or curious - shifting between childlike wonder and adult intensity depending on how, when, and by whom it is received.

Artist Bio

Bethany Lukocky is a multimedia artist working primarily with textiles, her practice draws from traditional craft techniques to explore how emotion and memory are embedded in material. There's a sensitivity to layering, repetition, and surface - where meaning is built up through time, texture and quiet intervention. A recent addition to the studios at Modern Painters, New Decorators and most recently exhibiting in CMYK 2025 Annual Members Exhibition.
